
The Journal of
UNITARIAN
UNIVERSALIST
HISTORY

Orestes A. Brownson's This-Worldly Universalism

BY LYNN GORDON HUGHES

Harriet E. Freeman and the Larger Life of Edward Everett Hale

BY SARA DAY

Research Notes

Unitarians and the Future:

An Address of Mrs. Humphry Ward
to the British and Foreign Unitarian Association, 1894

BY GEORGE A. KENNEDY

"You're Opening a WHAT???:"

The History and Future of the Hale House

BY JOAN YOUNGKEN

Volume XXXII (2008)

(Formerly the Proceedings of the Unitarian Universalist Historical Society)

Journal of Unitarian Universalist History

Volume XXXII (2008)

Formerly the Proceedings of the Unitarian Universalist Historical Society

Editor: Dean Grodzins

Advisory Board: David Hall, Joel Myerson, Lewis Perry, David Robinson, Cynthia Grant Tucker, Conrad E. Wright

Table of Contents for Volume XXXII:

Orestes A. Brownson's This-Worldly Universalism 1
by Lynn Gordon Hughes

Harriet E. Freeman and the Larger Life of Edward Everett Hale 21
by Sara Day

Illustrations After page 65

Edward Everett Hale and Emily Perkins Hale, with a grandson

Edward Everett Hale and Harriet E. Freeman

Research Notes:

Unitarians and the Future: 91

An Address of Mrs. Humphry Ward to the British and Foreign Unitarian Association, 1894
by George A. Kennedy

"You're Opening a WHAT???:" 99

The History and Future of the Hale House
by Joan Youngken

Contributors

Lynn Gordon Hughes is an independent scholar living in Toronto, Canada.

Sara Day is an independent scholar living in Washington, DC.

George A. Kennedy is Paddison Professor of Classics Emeritus, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Joan Youngken is Project Consultant for the Hale House Restoration.

The Journal of
UNITARIAN
UNIVERSALIST
HISTORY

"Doctor Ripley's Church":
Congregational Life in Concord, Massachusetts, 1778-1841

BY ROBERT A. GROSS

•

Orestes A. Brownson, Universalist Infidel?

BY LYNN GORDON HUGHES

•

Samuel Barrett Stewart, the Essex Conference, and the Remaking of American Unitarianism, 1865-1892

BY DAVID K. NARTONIS

•

Research Notes

Was the Register under Fritchman Pro-Soviet?

The Birkhead and Welch Reports

BY CHARLES EDDIS

•

The Alfred Hobart Project:
Fighting for Civil Rights in Birmingham, Alabama, 1953-1964

BY THOMAS MICHAEL KERSEN

Volume XXXIII (2009-2010)

(Formerly the Proceedings of the Unitarian Universalist Historical Society)

Journal of Unitarian Universalist History

Volume XXXIII (2009-2010)

Formerly the Proceedings of the Unitarian Universalist Historical Society

Editors: Dean Grodzins and Kathleen Parker

Advisory Board: David D. Hall, Joel Myerson, Lewis Perry, David M. Robinson, Cynthia Grant Tucker, Conrad E. Wright

Table of Contents for Volume XXXIII:

"Doctor Ripley's Church": Congregational Life in Concord, Massachusetts, 1778-1841 by Robert A. Gross	1
Orestes A. Brownson, Universalist Infidel? by Lynn Gordon Hughes	38
Samuel Barrett Stewart, the Essex Conference, and the Remaking of American Unitarianism, 1865-1892 by David K. Nartonis	86
Research Notes:
Was the Register under Fritchman Pro-Soviet? The Birkhead and Welch Reports by Charles Eddis	109
The Alfred Hobart Project: Fighting for Civil Rights in Birmingham, Alabama, 1953-1964 by Thomas Michael Kersen	117

Contributors

Robert A. Gross is James L. and Shirley A. Draper Professor of Early American History at the University of Connecticut.

Lynn Gordon Hughes is an independent scholar in Toronto, Canada.

David K. Nartonis is an independent scholar in Boston, Massachusetts.