The UUHHS Supports

- Publication of the Journal of Unitarian Universalist History -- with full text available on-line one year after initial release. The Journal includes articles of original research, adapted text of significant lectures, and reviews of recent books on Unitarian, Universalist, and UU history.
- Annual hosting of the Conrad Wright Lecture, featuring published speakers in Cambridge, MA, Berkeley, CA, Washington, D.C., and elsewhere
- An exciting interactive website, featuring historical essays, UU biographies, and bibliographies for further research. See uuhhs.org
- The UUHHS electronic discussion at UUHHS.org/forums/
- The Dictionary of Unitarian Universalist Biography: www.uua.org/uuhs/duub
- Networking with the Universalist Heritage Foundation, the UU Religious Education History Group, and other emerging history & heritage groups

Additional Important Projects of UUHHS

- The Unitarian Universalist History and Heritage Convocation, co-sponsored with UU Collegium, in Waltham, MA in 2010 and in Washington, D.C in 2013. Future UU History Convos are planned, including Twin Cities in 2016.
- Re-publication of critical texts in our history: Walking Together: Polity and Participation in Unitarian Universalism, by Conrad Wright; Freedom Moves West, by Charles Lyttle; Hunted Heretic, by Roland Bainton.
- Support of important projects, such as Long Strange Trip, a DVD film series by Ron Cordes; and Unitarian and Universalist Women: Liberating History, from ten yearly calendars by UUHHS.
- Sponsorship of workshops and lectures at General Assembly on topics such as "Creating Congregational Histories," "Hosea Ballou's Treatise at 200," "A Way out of No Way" with Gordon Gibson, and "Let Ours Be No Silent Witness" with Cynthia Grant Tucker
- Hosting the UUHHS table at General Assembly with informational literature, books for purchase, and membership forms
